For over 80 years, the Whitney Museum of American Art has been home to the most significant and exciting works of art ever created in the United States. Now, these works are displayed in a breathtaking new venue: a 220,000-square-foot building in New York City’s Meatpacking District, designed by world-renowned architect Renzo Piano.

Located on Gansevoort Street at Washington Street, the Whitney Museum is nestled in one of the most prominent and desirable districts in the world, surrounded by beautifully preserved buildings and rich history. Your special event at the Whitney is one to be remembered.

Entertaining privileges at the Whitney are exclusive to Corporate Members of the Museum and are not available to the general public. The Museum’s spaces provide the perfect setting for any event, including:

- Receptions
- Seated dinners
- Meetings and luncheons
- Photo/film shoots
- Fashion presentations
- Film screenings
- Lectures and panel discussions
